

Carmel named top school

Posted Wednesday, November 03, 2004

Carmel High School has been named one of the Top 50 Catholic secondary schools in the United States by the Catholic High School Honor Roll, an independent project of the Action Institute for the Study of Religion and Liberty.

The institute is an international research and educational organization comprised of Catholic college presidents and noted Catholic scholars. The selection process was based on statistical information, program descriptions and a series of questions on Catholic understandings.

Carmel was selected out of 250 high schools based on academic scores, Catholicity and civic instruction. The school also received a second award by being named to an elite list of 20 high schools that excel in the area of Catholic identity.