Montfort on 'Top 50' Catholic school list

The Montfort Academy was selected to the Acton Institute's top 50 list of Catholic high schools in America. The list is compiled by the Catholic High School Honor Roll, an independent project of the Acton Institute for the Study of Religion & Liberty, an international research and educational organization based in Grand Rapids, Mich. The Acton Institute's Web site is www.acton.org.

The Honor Roll was produced in consultation with a national advisory board comprising Catholic college presidents and noted Catholic scholars. The Catholic High School Honor Roll recognizes schools that excel in the areas of academics, Catholic identity, and civic education. Ranking on the list recognizes the Montfort Academy as one of the "outstanding examples of Catholic secondary education from across the country." Further information is available at www.chshonor.org.

The Montfort Academy is a classical high school for young men. Its mission is to provide a place where students develop intellectually, spiritually, and physically in an environment that respects and fosters only the highest standards of education and character formation and to prepare them to attend the finest colleges, universities, or military academies in the country.
